GVK Coal-Australia steers ahead

GVK's Kevin's Corner Project has received Federal Government Approval under the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999 (EPBC). The construction is expected to start in 2015 with the first coal being produced in 2018.

GVK and Aurizon have reached a significant milestone towards their proposed agreement for the joint development of a rail line and a new coal terminal at the Abbot Point Port to unlock the Galilee Basin's coal resources, including the Alpha, Alpha West and Kevin's Corner coal projects. Aurizon would invest through upfront consideration at completion of the transaction and deferred consideration at financial close of each phase of the projects. The agreement is intended to provide sufficient equity and debt funding (including through third party debt finance) for the projects to reach financial close.

GVK has received the Australian Federal Government's approval for its Abbot Point Port Capital Dredging programme. This move finalises Ministerial environmental approvals for its Galilee Basin coal assets and associated infrastructure. This final environmental approval from the Federal government is a significant milestone towards the development of GVK Hancock's Terminal 3 (T3) port facilities, and Galilee Basin coal assets including the Alpha, Alpha West and Kevin's Corner coal projects, along with the construction of a rail solution to the Abbot Point Port. With State and Federal Government approvals, GVK's coal projects are in most advanced stage.
